“LGC ASSURE connects the dots of supply chain assurance. By collecting and analysing data in a connected way, we can give customers the visibility and insights they need to keep consumers safe and protect brand reputation.”

Mike Wilson, Senior Vice President, LGC ASSURE

Science has underpinned all we do for 180 years. From assuring the reliability of testing laboratories, to providing robust global assurance programmes, to specialised analytical testing services, we apply our technical expertise to deliver a connected set of solutions that ensure product integrity, and ultimately a safer world.

Complete confidence at every step of the supply chain

Fundamental changes in consumer behaviour, technology and routes to market have made it increasingly difficult for complete supply chain transparency. Protecting your consumer and your brand's reputation relies on accurate information about you, your suppliers, the goods and services you buy from them, and the quality of raw materials they provide. However, this only tells you so much.

LGC ASSURE holds over 180 years of scientific heritage, with a track record of testing innovation and assurance expertise. We offer a connected suite of solutions that intelligently analyse the safety, quality and authenticity of such goods and services, with demonstrable value drivers for health, the environment, human welfare and ethical impact. Through all these data points we can determine the activity required to protect yourself and those who buy and consume your products. These trusted, actionable insights give you the true visibility and transparency you need.

For assurance from a trusted partner who can safeguard the integrity and continuity of your business, choose LGC ASSURE.

From compliance to complete confidence

Supply chains have grown in length and complexity in recent years. The value of goods traded globally has tripled to more than $10 trillion annually, creating supply chains that are harder to manage, less resilient and more opaque.

The emergence of ESG as a key driver of investment decision making means brand owners, manufacturers and retailers need greater visibility of standards and practices across their supply networks.

Thanks to the proliferation of digital and social channels poor supply chain practices and product integrity failures are increasingly vulnerable to exposure and consumer activism.

The result is that product integrity is under greater challenge than ever before and the risk of exposure is increasing. Forces are combining to create the need for a more connected approach to supply chain assurance, with the emphasis on ever improving performance rather than compliance with minimum standards.

LGC ASSURE represents a wealth of expertise now connected up to provide additional value to customers. With such strong market drivers pushing the limits of product integrity, LGC ASSURE helps customers to:

- Test and validate systems
- Verify product performance and integrity
- Manage processes efficiently and effectively
- Collect and analyse data to predict future risk

The result is complete supply chain confidence.
