

Neumann Risk Services, LLC

Melanie Neumann, J.D., M.S.

Melanie Neumann, J.D., M.S. is the President and Global Food Safety Attorney of Neumann Risk Services, LLC, (NRS). NRS is a holistic food safety risk management firm where food law, food safety, food science, and brand reputation converge. Melanie provides legal, regulatory, business and brand advice and counsel to help the food and beverage industry manage these various risks. Melanie leverages her 18 years of industry experience as a food law attorney along with her master's of science degree in Food Safety to help clients understand the risks relating to the manufacturing, distribution and sale of food globally.

This involves working with companies to interact with regulators in response to investigations, enforcement actions and recalls, FSMA compliance and other FDA and USDA regulations. Equally important, Melanie works with companies proactively to identify strategies to manage risks --such as supply chain risks-- through an enterprise risk management approach, and helps clients tackle emerging food safety risks and regulatory changes in both the U.S. and international markets. Melanie is active in the Global Food Safety Initiative (GFSI), is a technical working group member of the GFSI Global Markets Program Strategy group, as well as a member of The Sackler Institute of Nutrition Science of the New York Academy of Sciences. Melanie is an avid runner, marathoner, triathlete, and four-time Ironman finisher.
